Bingo Caller's Card

Use your Bingo Caller's Card to call the bingo and keep track of which words you have already called.

Print two copies of the caller's card. Cut one copy up, fold the squares in half, and put them in a hat. To call the bingo, pull a square out of the hat, unfold it and read it out.

When you have called a word/number, tick it off on the second copy of the caller's card. You can use the second copy of the caller's card to check if a player has a winning card during a game.

As I expected, we're seeing a variety of swings across different states - and, indeed, within states	This is another seat with a retiring member	We're starting to see some more meaningful figures coming in now	I suspect we won't get a definitive outcome in this seat tonight	I suspect the result in this seat could come down to postals	Let's have a look at the state of the parties	Those preference projections don't look right to me
I'm prepared to call the election for Labor	This is another seat with a large number of early votes cast	These are very early figures	If I can just pull up the House of Reps chamber	There's been a strong showing by the independent candidate	The outcome in this seat will hinge on whether Labor or the Greens finish third on primaries	That's a clear win on primary votes
We're seeing quite different swings in metropolitan seats compared to the regions	I'm prepared to call the election for the coalition	The Senate result is more in the hands of voters this time due to the end of preference whispering	Let's take a final call of the board	I'm not prepared to call this seat yet on those figures	This looks like a night for the independents	We won't get a full breakdown of the Senate results tonight
This seat is shaping as a very close three way contest	I'm not prepared to call the election yet	The outcome of this seat will come down to minor party preference	I suspect we'll see that swing come down once some of the larger booths start coming in	It's just too early to make anything from these figures

This looks like a night for the independents	The outcome of this seat will come down to minor party preference	The outcome in this seat will hinge on whether Labor or the Greens finish third on primaries	I'm not prepared to call this seat yet on those figures	These are very early figures
This is another seat with a large number of early votes cast	That's a clear win on primary votes	Those preference projections don't look right to me	I suspect the result in this seat could come down to postals	We're starting to see some more meaningful figures coming in now
If I can just pull up the House of Reps chamber	It's just too early to make anything from these figures	SORRY - THAT'S THE WRONG SCREEN	I suspect we'll see that swing come down once some of the larger booths start coming in	We won't get a full breakdown of the Senate results tonight
We're seeing quite different swings in metropolitan seats compared to the regions	I'm prepared to call the election for the coalition	There's been a strong showing by the independent candidate	This is another seat with a retiring member	As I expected, we're seeing a variety of swings across different states - and, indeed, within states
Let's take a final call of the board	I'm not prepared to call the election yet	I suspect we won't get a definitive outcome in this seat tonight	The Senate result is more in the hands of voters this time due to the end of preference whispering	Let's have a look at the state of the parties
